Bryanism in West Virginia.

Chairman Edmiston, of the West Virginia Bryan committee, is trying to put some spirit into his party. He goes at it with a circular letter which it gives the Intelligencer great pleasure to print in another column.

Chairman Edmiston has made the interesting discovery that the "gold bugs" are trying to steal West Virginia by the use of "unlimited sums of money." It may be remarked in passing that "unlimited" has come to be a favorite word with the Bryan people. They even go so far as to find satisfaction in talking unlimited liberties with the truth.

In addition to buying free silver men to way away from the polls, these unlimited "gold bugs" are going to use their unlimited wealth to corrupt the election officers and to induce free silver men to vote against their consciences.

We beg to suggest to Chairman Edmiston that he should address himself to the free silver men whose consciences are to be corrupted and urge them to fit themselves out with consciences that will stand the strain of campaign temptation. If he can't supply them with new consciences in any other way he might load up with a job lot from the men who have been running his party's campaign heretofore. They have the genuine article warranted to keep in any climate and to stand the hardest kind of knocks.

We regard Chairman Edmiston's letter as a decidedly good thing, and it gives us great pleasure to speed it on its way. Literature of this sort is not picked up every day. When the campaign is over Brother Edmiston need not be out of a job. If he will join his fortunes with Mr. Bryan's combination he would be great for writing circus posters; and that is a thing that pays better than the work they are both engaged in at this time.

There is just one slight omission in Chairman Edmiston's letter. He fails to specify "the immense amount of money which is at the disposal of the gold bugs." Of course he knows the exact amount, but for campaign reasons, perhaps, he fails to tell. That information would interest more than anything else in the letter, most of the men to whom it has been sent.

The town was ours Saturday. So will the state and country be before many days have passed away.

The "Corollon" Howl.

Mr. Bryan seeks to excuse himself for advising the wage-earners of the country to wear yellow badges and march in McKinley parades and vote for Bryan. He can't excuse himself. The intent of his advice was to play in with the scheme of his national committee and make it appear that the wage-workers of the country are being "coerced" into voting for sound money.

The cry of "corollon" insults the manhood of the men who work for wages in this country, every one of whom will answer for himself whether his employer is trying to force him to vote for sound money. If Mr. Bryan and his managers had more intimate acquaintance with the men they are talking about they would know that their plan of campaign must lose them votes.

The American wage-earner respects himself and does not like to have it said of him that he has no little manhood and no little pride of citizenship as to permit himself to be coerced. Nor does the American workman like better to have it taken for granted that he is so bull-headed that his employer will not be allowed to lay before him conditions touching the business in which they are both engaged. The howl about "coercion," raised to help the Bryan party, will have quite the opposite effect.

Two years ago we saw something of this in the city of Wheeling. It was charged by persons who knew better than the men in Mr. Whitaker's mill were being "coerced" into supporting him for the state senate. The self-respecting Democrats employed in the Whitaker mill resented that dignity in a way that told. So it will be in this campaign. The Bryanite imputation will be resented at the polls.

Saturday was the greatest political day in the history of Wheeling. This is why "our friends, the enemy," are doing their level best to belittle it. It will count, just the same.

The Railroad Speeches.

The speeches of Mr. Cowen and Mr. Lynch, at the meeting of railroad men, are worthy of the space which the Intelligencer devotes to them. They both give unanswerable reasons why railroad men should not support Bryanism. The reasons which apply to railroad men apply to all who work for wages and to all interested directly or indirectly in the prosperity of the wage-earners of the country.

The question presents itself as a proposition to reduce wages in the hope of helping the owners of silver mines to get more for their product. Wage-earners who help along this scheme will not be the men who have given the question the most serious thought. Let every man who works for wages give these speeches his careful attention and then determine for himself whether he can see any misstatement of facts or any flaw in the reasoning.

Each one of them is worth more than all that has fallen from Mr. Bryan's lips—in all nearly 700,000 words—because each speech states facts beyond dispute and appeals to reason instead of to prejudice of any sort. It is a great honor to Wheeling to have two such speeches in one day.

Secretary Carlisle makes strong speeches on the money question, but no speech that he could deliver would help his cause as much as the ruffianism which has greeted him at his home.

The Kentucky Outrage.

The decency of Kentucky is offended and aroused by the indignity put upon Secretary Carlisle at his home. Men who love fair play are the more incensed because the fact is established that the mob demonstration, including the eggs, was arranged in advance by the Bryan leaders.

The Democratic Louisville Courier-Journal is filled with dispatches from all over the state denouncing the outrage and predicting that Kentuckians by the thousands will show at the polls how deep their resentment is. The Courier-Journal seizes upon the nasty incident as showing the spirit of the Bryan campaign. This is the ugly and most significant part of it.

The Bryan plan of campaign seeks to close the mouths of Democrats who refuse to swallow Bryanism. This is what they call "making treason odious." In fact they are making their party so odious that every day it loses the support of men who had intended to vote for its nominees.

The more Bryanism shows itself as it is the less it commands the confidence of people who think out their votes.

"If we do not take care of our business our business will not take care of us," says Major McKinley. Are Bryan and Tillman and Coxe and Altgeld and Debs the kind of men who are likely to take good care of the business of the country? Put this way the situation is enough to startle the most composed.

Where did they all come from? Some were visitors, of course, who don't vote in West Virginia; and then there were several thousand whose protest against Bryanism will go thundering into the West Virginia ballot box.

Every day the tide runs stronger towards sound money and sound government. High tide is due one week from to-morrow.

They have practically given up the effort to push Bryan into the white house. The scheme now is to pick up any congressional crumbs that may be lying around loose.

Kentucky's sense of decency and honor will assert itself at the polls.

Waters in Fayette County.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.
FIRE CREEK, W. Va., Oct. 23.—Phil Watts, the young colored orator from Kanawha, spoke to a vast number of people here last night. The audience was composed chiefly of miners, and the enthusiasm they displayed when the "boy orator of the Kanawha" compared their present condition with that under Republican rule was unbounded. He presented the issues in a masterly manner. He told good work for the G. O. P. and has made many friends here. Fayette county is in line. It will give 2,000 for McKinley, Atkinson and the whole ticket.
